The Carson Debating Club has decided that Miss Annie Martin and Mrs. Frank Leslie are the greatest lady editors in America. This is quite flattering to Mrs. Frank Leslie.

The Denver News pertinently asks: If silver is legal tender and silver dollars are good enough for the common American citizen, why not compel Eastern goldbugs to accept silver dollars or nothing?

The Piche Record says: "Our cattlemen are wearing doleful visages and they say if the present bad weathers continues, their bosses will be so severe as to drive them to the verge of bankruptcy."

As everybody expected, the Tribune editor was not gentleman enough to give the Associated Press agent credit for contradicting, in the Coast papers, the erroneous statements unwittingly made regarding the murder of Mrs. Eggleston.

Three prisoners in the Comstock jail induced the officers to believe that they were suffering with scarlet fever, by applying croton oil to their persons. While being removed to the county hospital they escaped. The attending physician seems to be a little out of practice.

The racy details of the Breckinridge-Pollard case are still being flashed over the wires. Breckinridge's defense will be that he was "betrayed" by the girl. Miss Pollard's friends deny that she will kill Breckinridge if she loses the suit for breach of promise. In any event, they say, she will write a book giving all the unfortunate events of her infatuation and relations for ten years with Breckinridge.

HELP THE COMMITTEE.

The Humboldt county silver league sends the Populist national committee $50 to-day as a first contribution to their campaign fund. The Silver State will also receive funds from anyone who wishes to contribute and forward from time to time. Most anyone can throw in 50 cents or a dollar and not miss it, so come on boys and help the good cause. The committee has no corporations backing it and must depend on the common people for assistance. We hope every Silver paper in the State will take the matter up and raise something. Remember, every little helps.—Silver State.

The APPEAL will also receive subscriptions to help along the good work. It is now in order for all true silver men who have the interests of the State at heart to show their spirit and earnestness in a material way. Talk is cheap.

Sandow vs. Corbett.

Ever since Corbett and Sandow the Strong had their altercation in Central Park over their respective merits renewed efforts have been made to have a test between the two in the ring. Sandow is still credited with saying that he could parry Corbett's blows so as to wind him or disable his arms, while Jim declares that he could knock out the Hercules in one punch. One of the Eastern writers says:

"There would appear to be several questions of capacity and veracity between these two. But that of whether abnormal strength can cope with pugilistic science is the most interesting, and is something that thousands of people would willingly pay a large admission fee to see settled. Sandow says, 'I don't need to go into the fighting business to make money.' The weekly stipend he receives now may look like big money to eyes more accustomed to German pennies than United States dollars, but if the modern Samson can make his words good and is able to 'stand off' the champion a round or so in Madison Square Garden he can gather in as many gold pieces in one night as he ever owned in copper pennies. Sandow will never have a like opportunity again."

Corbett's Queer Tactics.

Jim Corbett is certainly acting in a queer way in regard to carrying out his agreement to fight Peter Jackson in June. When it was announced that the colored boxer was out of fix, the champion was eager to press matters. Now, however, when he learns that Jackson is anxious and willing to fight, Corbett declines to keep his contract. One of two things is certain—either the Californian does not feel confident of his ability to whip Jackson, and wishes to put off the meeting as long as possible, or else he is gathering in money so fast that he is opposed to stopping in order to go into training for the next fight. Probably the business motive is the one that inspires his action.—Post.

State University.

Yesterdays Journal says: To-day the Spring term at the State University commences after the March vacation. Several new students have entered and all the old ones who went home for the week have returned or are expected back to-day or to-morrow.

Last evening Miss Hadley French of Carson, Miss Nellie Murphy of Empire, Miss Lily Virgin of Genoa, Howard Lacky of Virginia City and Arthur Mack of Dayton came down on the V. & T. passenger. Miss Mary Noddurip of Fredricksburg, Cal., arrived on the local and yesterday morning Robert Simonds came down from Floriston.

Counterfeit Coins.

Omaha March 21.—A large force of Secret Service men is here co-operating with the resident officers in their efforts to unearth a gang of counterfeiters who are operating in this neighborhood. They are making dollars of the same composition and weight as the legal coins and so much like them that they cannot be detected. The counterfeiters are reported to make 51 cents on each dollar and to have manufactured half a million of them.

Abraham Lincoln was 6 feet 4 1/2 inches in height. Talking with some friends one day, the subject under discussion was how long a man's leg ought to be. Mr. Lincoln said he had given much thought to the matter and had come to the conclusion that they should be long enough to reach from the body to the ground.—Watchword.

Caught a Sucker.

The other day a well known saloon keeper noticing a fellow from the country fooling with the cards on the table, asked if he would like to play for the drinks. He said he didn't mind, and at the saloon keeper's suggestion to make it four handed, was also agreeable. Then the festive bar-keep, gave the wink to a couple of friends, and they sat down to play.

Of course they let the stranger win the first game just to make him feel good, and then induced him to play another to see who would set up the drinks for both games. The stranger agreed, and when the cards ran the other way and the liquor dispenser announced that the stranger was "stuck," the man with the aroma of hay coming from his whiskers, coolly took a flask of whiskey from his inside pocket gave them a couple of pulls all around and leisurely walked out.

White Men Wanted.

A gentleman who has recently been in Calumville, Esmeralda county, says that white men can get work down there at $2 per day and board, in the borax works. Chinamen are now employed, but the managers prefer white men, and would discharge thirty Chinamen and put white men in their places on application.
